

Relationship with Others – Resources

Trade Goods
Collection of Glenbow Museum

Relationship with Others – Resources

R.B. Nevitt

First Whiskey Spilled, 1874

watercolour and pencil

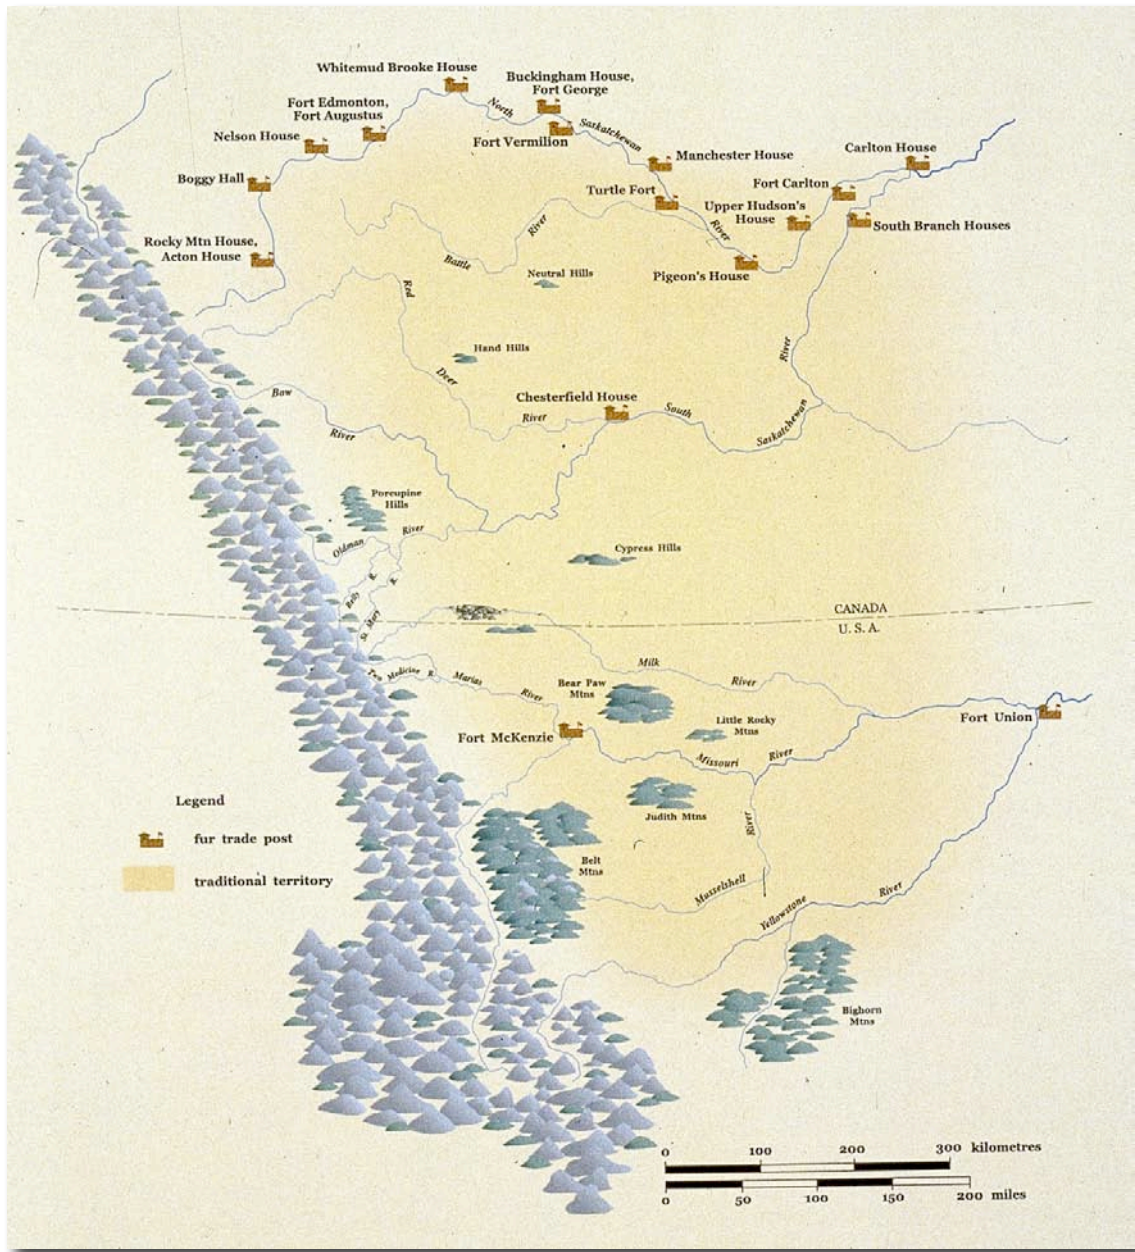

Collection of Glenbow Museum 74.7.11

The North-West Mounted Police were sent west to evict the American whiskey traders and restore order.

Relationship with Others – Resources

Fur Trade Posts

Trading Posts

Courtesy of Glenbow Museum

The Blackfoot welcomed the fur traders for the new tools they brought. But they did not want the fur traders to build permanent forts in their territory. The forts were built around the edges of Blackfoot territory.

Relationship with Others – Resources

This is a map of the whiskey trading posts. Naapiaohkii (whiskey) was the most important item these Americans traded. The effects were disastrous for the Blackfoot. Courtesy of Glenbow Museum

Relationship with Others – Resources

The Blackfoot's traditional territory spread eastward from the Rocky Mountains, across the northwestern plains.

Courtesy of Glenbow Museum